Special issue on Computer Vision and Pattern Recognition

The special issue is dedicated to publish manuscripts that explore the reconstration, extraction, analysis, interpretation and understanding of imformation from image or video, signal processing and so on. Including manuscripts coming from its application in the following domains: Robotics, medecine, Security and surveillance, transportation, industrial automation image and video databases, biometrics, gesture analysis and geoscience but not limitd to.

Deep learning techniques for object detection and classification

Human behavior analysis

Video surveillance and technologies homeland security

Medical imaging

Nondestructive testing

Visual question answering

Human/computer and human/robot interaction

Robot vision

Assistive computer vision technologies

Abstract

Research papers should be accompanied by an abstract, which will appear in front of the main body of the text. It should be written in complete sentences and should summarize the aims, methods, results and conclusions in less than 250 words. The abstract should be comprehensible to readers before they read the paper, and abbreviations citations and mathematical equations/notations should be avoided.

Authors are responsible for the accuracy of manuscript and references. Example as follows: -

Levin, S.A., Grenfell, B., Hastings, A., and Perelson. A.S. 1997, Mathematical and Computational Challenges in Population Biology and Ecosystem Science, Science, 275, 334-343.

Tables should be self-explanatory and should include a brief descriptive title. Illustrations should be clearly lettered and of the highest quality. Acknowledgements and Footnotes should be included at the end of the text. Any footnote should be identified by superscripted numbers.
